

did not mention that Liberal bugaboo, renationalization of the steel industry.

This curious contrast was pointed out in a dramatic speech from the floor that immediately followed the Wilson address. The speaker was Woodrow Wyatt, a Labor Member of Parliament, who has long favored an alliance with the Liberals.

"Whatever the Government says," Mr. Wyatt remarked, "it is already qualifying its program. You haven't heard much today about steel."

"I believe we have got to make arrangements now so that the Liberals will support us when we are wrong as well as when we are right," Mr. Wyatt urged Labor to pay the price demanded by the Liberals for that kind of complete support—a step toward proportional representation in Britain that would greatly increase the Parliamentary seats of the Liberals who now have only 10 for their 3,000,000 votes last fall.

Wilson Rejection

The Prime Minister seemed just as explicitly to reject the idea of any such electoral deal with the Liberals. He said at the end of his speech that any impasse in the House of Commons would not be "settled in the back corridors," but would be put to the British people. With Liberal backing, Mr. Wyatt argued, Labor could look forward to 10 years in office. Otherwise he warned that its present majority of two could slip away some night and the

C.I.A. Says Soviet Seeks to Discredit It

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—America's Central Intelligence Agency is circulating among a group of Congressmen a report describing a Soviet propaganda campaign aimed at the C.I.A.

The activity, the C.I.A. report said, has been chiefly directed by a special "Department of Disinformation" established in the Soviet State Security Service; set up by former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, and headed by Gen. Ivan Ivanovich Agayants, "a senior, professional intelligence officer with long experience and well-developed agent and political contacts in Western Europe."

The objective of the campaign, the report stated, "is to achieve the destruction, break-up and neutralization of the C.I.A." with an ultimate goal

O.A.S. MINISTERS TO MEET NOV. 17

Meeting in Rio de Janeiro to Study Strengthening of Hemisphere Pact

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (Reuters)—The Council of the Organization of American States unanimously voted today to call a hemisphere foreign ministers' meeting in Rio de Janeiro on Nov. 17 to consider means of strengthening the inter-American system.

The twice postponed ministerial meeting, known as the Second Special Inter-American Conference, is the highest decision-making body of the O. A. S.

The Rio conference was originally scheduled for May 20. The outbreak of civil strife in the Dominican Republic on April 24 forced the first postponement to Aug. 4. The continuing involvement of the O.A.S. in settling the crisis forced a second postponement on July 21.

The ambassadors to the Council decided then to leave the date open but committed themselves to consider holding the meeting this year.

Meeting Due Regularly

There has not been a full-fledged Inter-American Conference since 1954, although the O. A. S. Charter calls for one every five years. The 11th regular Inter-American Conference was to have been held in Quito, Ecuador, in 1959, but was indefinitely postponed at the request of Ecuador's Government.

Among the items on the agenda for the Rio meeting are:

• Strengthening of the O.A.S. machinery, including the advisability of holding annual meetings of foreign ministers.

• Revision of the statutes governing the Inter-American Peace Committee and the Human Rights Committee.

• A full-scale review of the Alliance for Progress.

Although not yet on the agenda, the question of Communist subversion and means of combatting it, including the possible creation of a permanent inter-American force, is expected to be brought before the conference by the United States, Brazil and other witness. Judge T. Werth Thagard turned over the prosecution to the regular circuit solicitor and ordered the trial to proceed.

The case involves Tom Coleman, 55 years old, who is charged in the shotgun killing of an Episcopal seminarian, Jonathan Daniels, 27, on Aug. 20. Mr. Daniels lived in Keele, N. H.

Mr. Flowers had taken over the prosecution, as the state's legal officer and had tried to get a postponement of the trial. Solicitor Arthur A. Gamble Jr., who is the regular prosecutor for this circuit, told the court he would go ahead with the trial. Assistant Attorney General Joe Brock Gantt said that the state could not proceed.

Mr. Gantt had asked the judge for a noli prosequi—no prosecution—because a key witness could not be present and on the contention that the state could not get a fair trial. The defense objected to the action, which would have permitted the state to seek a new murder indictment later.

The absent witness is a Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Richard Morriseau from Chicago, who was critically wounded in the shooting that killed Mr. Daniels at Hayneville. Mr. Gantt said the priest was still under medical treatment.

Ecumenical Council Is Told Catholic Church Should Back Psychoanalysis

ROME, Sept. 28 (AP)—A progressive bishop from Mexico told the Ecumenical Council in the Vatican today that the Roman Catholic Church should make more use of psychoanalysis and the discoveries of Freud. Bishop Sergio Mendez Arceo of Cuernavaca, who made the statement in the name of 10 Latin-American bishops, declared:

"There is no field of pastoral activity where psychoanalysis is not useful, and it has already produced enormous good. It provides a useful method of purification."

Members of the American bishop's panel commented afterward that as far as Roman Catholicism in the United States was concerned, Bishop Mendez Arceo's proposals were behind the times.

Psychiatric Aid Used

"There are many Catholic seminaries in the United States where individuals get psychiatric help," said one member of the panel. "Four or five years ago it was all the rage."

But the American panel members did not hide the fact that Sigmund Freud, the Viennese Jew who founded modern psychoanalysis, was opposed by many circles in the church.

N.Y. Is Told to See Pope on TV; 18,000 Policemen to Guard Route

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP)—The New York Police Commissioner, Vincent L. Broderick, urged New Yorkers today to stay off the streets during the visit of Pope Paul VI next week and to watch the event on television.

Mr. Broderick said that 18,000 policemen would be assigned to protect the Pontiff during his 14-hour visit here Monday.

The commissioner said that the facilities of the Police Department would be taxed "to an extent they have never been taxed before."

He said that the visit would cost the department a minimum of $1 million in overtime pay.

Mr. Broderick said that 10,000 men would be stationed along the route and 8,000 more would be redeployed to areas where the Pope will make stops.

He asked churches, schools and other community facilities to set up television sets so the people can see the Pope.

It was also disclosed that residents along the projected route—most of which was made public earlier—had been subjected to intensive security checks by the department.

The commissioner said that police find it necessary, buildings along the route from the Kennedy Airport to Manhattan would be sealed off before the motorcade passes. He declined to say how long before.

"to isolate and destroy what the K.G.B. designates as 'glavni vrag' (main enemy), the United States."

The C.I.A. often under attack at home and abroad for some of its reported operations in the cold war, issued the report to members of Congress charged with keeping an eye on its operations.

The operations of the "Soviet Disinformation Department" have been successful thus far in stimulating a wide replay in Africa, Southeast Asia, the Middle East, and even in the United States," the C.I.A. said. The C.I.A. said that one of the preferred instruments utilized by the Soviet to "disseminate disinformation is the forged document," and between June 1961 and last July, 14 instances of forged U.S. official documents have come under scrutiny.

Although the C.I.A. has not omitted from some of these spurious documents," the report observed, "the principal purpose of such forgeries has been to discredit U.S. policies and the representatives of U.S. agencies, such as the Department of State, U.S.I.A., the Peace Corps, the armed forces and American political leaders generally."

sudden explosion of Taal at 2:25 A.M. Manila time.

The Batangas Province Governor, Feliciano Leviste, said 117 persons were confirmed dead.

Dr. Generoso Caridad, Red Cross medical services director, said upon his return to Manila tonight that 104 bodies had been found on the shores of the lake. He believed that hundreds of bodies might have been buried under thick ashes and hot mud.

Three small villages on the island were reported completely engulfed by the lava coughed up by the volcano, which last erupted in 1911, claiming more than 1,300 lives.

Fireball Shot Up

The initial eruption was said to have sent a huge fireball more than 10,000 feet into the night sky. The earth shook, and hot lava bubbled over the crest of the crater. Lesser eruptions continued throughout the day.

Evacuees reported that two villages on the island slid into the water when the cone erupted in the predawn darkness.

The volcanic cone, 984 feet above sea level, forms the island in the center of Taal Lake, surrounded by high ridges 2,000 feet above the sea.

Taal volcano has been a major tourist attraction for visitors to Manila because of the deep lake in the center of its crater. Nearby are the summer and weekend homes of well-to-do Manila residents.

Tourists willing to climb down the steep slopes to the water's edge have been able to hire a boat out to the central cone with its steaming, sulphurous hot springs. Taal Volcano is among five major volcanoes in the Philippine Archipelago.

Two weeks ago, volcanologists detected an increase in the water temperature inside the small lake within the volcano's crater, but they said there was no immediate danger of a new eruption.

Taal Volcano has had 18 recorded eruptions over the last four centuries. The last one, in 1911, spilled hot lava over an area of more than 100 square miles.

President Diosdado Macapagal, who was 55 years old today, drove to Tagaytay to personally supervise the evacuation of people in the area.

Mr. Macapagal met with about 1,000 refugees who were housed temporarily in the gymnasium in Tanauan on the shoreline of Taal Lake by mid-morning.

Mr. Macapagal left the scene after about half an hour and returned to Manila after assuring the refugees of full Government assistance, a spokesman said.
